Assassination Of Portugal's King Means Peace
Of Continent Is Threatened.

THE PREMIER RESIGNED HIS OFFICE

New King Is Proclaimed And Troops Guard Every Approach To Royal Apartments--Details Of The Murder Of King And Crown Prince.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Feb. 3.—Dispatches from Lisbon announce that the new King of Portugal has been crowned. Under the title of Manuel II, Prince Manuel Maria Philippo Charles Amello was proclaimed King of Portugal to succeed his father, the late King Carlos, who was assassinated in the streets of the city Saturday. King Manuel is the second son of the dead ruler of the little kingdom, now the center of the eyes of the world, and comes to the throne by the death of his elder brother, who was killed at the same time as his illustrious father. The little monarch has issued the following proclamation:

The new King Manuel II, was born in 1889 and proclaimed King yesterday on death of his father and elder brother.

For some months past a cry of republic has been heard incessantly from leaders of the people's party and while the death of the King had been talked of as not seriously considered as a possible outcome by the leaders of the republicans. These men are now said to be doing all in their power to prevent a revolution and the work of Premier Franco, whose resignation had led to this condition of affairs, is bent in the same trend.

The King and his royal party were returning from the estate at Villa Vicosa, accompanied by the queen, the crown prince, and the infant Manuel, the sovereign seemingly was in a happy mood when he stepped into the carriage in waiting at the railroad station.

Thousands of spectators, gayly attired, in combination with the bright decorations set out to welcome the royal family, made an animated scene. All the surrounding streets were filled with lighted torches through which the king and crown prince were passing. The king and crown prince were surrounded by a dense throng of people, no one had thought of the attempt which was to come.

Great Throgs Cheer King
The court, ministers and ladies in waiting, and many army officers were in the station when the train drawing the royal family pulled in. Among those in the throng without were large numbers of the working classes, who were shouting through the streets shouting and laughing and ready to welcome the reigning king as an incident of the day which was marked by the sternest of repressive measures.

Others, enthusiastic members of the association, numbering six in all, boldly ran up to the sides of the carriage and poured in a hail of lead before the stunned escort could intervene. The king and crown prince, half raising, fell back into the cushioned seats.

Assassins Cling to Carriage
Then, as the carriage sharply turned into the Rua do Arsenal, there was a crackling of guns, and a shower of bullets tore their way into the bodies of the king and crown prince and the little prince, who proved an easy target.

An open carriage was in waiting for the royal family, and when they took their places they were greeted with some lifting of hats, but mostly in silence.

Then, as the carriage sharply turned into the Rua do Arsenal, there was a crackling of guns, and a shower of bullets tore their way into the bodies of the king and crown prince and the little prince, who proved an easy target.

King Manuel, the new king, was born in 1889. A brother of the late King in Alphonso, Duke of Oporto, whose title of Manuel II, Prince Manuel Maria Philippo Charles Amello was proclaimed King of Portugal to succeed his father, the late King Carlos, who was assassinated in the streets of the city Saturday. King Manuel is the second son of the dead ruler of the little kingdom, now the center of the eyes of the world, and comes to the throne by the death of his elder brother, who was killed at the same time as his illustrious father. The little monarch has issued the following proclamation:

Premier's Work
Premier Franco is responsible for the condition of affairs and has placed troops in every possible avenue that leads to the royal palace and on streets where a possible uprising might occur. The proclamation was made late yesterday afternoon in the new King's bed chamber, where he is confined with the wounds he received at the same time as his father and brother's deaths. It is feared to show him in public for fear of the excited condition of the people over the news of the late king's death and hence he is closely guarded in the palace.

A Political Crime
The murder of the late King and the Crown Prince was evidently one of the many plots that have been discovered against the existing condition of affairs in Portugal. They were returned from a summer palace to the city when the attack occurred and while guarded by troops were shot down, the King dying instantly and Crown Prince dying before medical aid could be reached.

CATHOLIC CHURCHES OBSERVE OLD CUSTOM

Memory of Saint Blasius Is Observed Today All Over the United States and Europe.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
New York, Feb. 3.—In nearly every Catholic church of the city today there was celebrated a quaint custom, which has been handed down through many centuries, commemorating the miracles in healing throat diseases, wrought by St. Blasius, or Blaise, bishop and martyr.

St. Blasius was bishop of Sebaste, a city of Cappadocia, in Lesser Asia, and during his retirement in the hills not far from the city he attained such a degree of sanctity that he was enabled to cure ailments of the throat merely by the laying on of his hands. He suffered martyrdom in the year 316 in the reign of Diocletian, and at the instance of Agricolaus, the governor.

At the Council of Oxford in 1222, servile labor was prohibited on the saint's day, and until quite recently St. Blasius festival was celebrated in England by the building of great bonfires on the hillsides. Some contend, therefore, that the word "Blaise" comes from the name of the miracle-worker.

Will Carry on Active Campaign--Speakers Will Be Sent Out Into All the States.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Chicago, Feb. 3.—A particularly active campaign is to be carried on this year by the prohibition party, according to an announcement of plans made by the party officials. It is intended to raise a fund of at least $100,000 for the fight, of which nearly $20,000 already has been subscribed. Speakers will be sent into every state of the union to make formal addresses and stump speeches on the cause of total prohibition. The campaign will be carried "into the enemy's country" in every locality. A keen campaign is to be inaugurated in the south. Headquarters already have been established at Dallas, Texas, and preparations are being made by the local committee to force the battle in all southern territory. In Texas a fight is also to be made to submit to the voters in 1909 a constitutional amendment prohibiting the sale of liquor in the state. It is feared that a prohibition statute might be declared unconstitutional under the present constitution, so the fight will be made for an amendment to the document.

AT THE PLAY HOUSES

There has been a lot of talk of recent years that the chorus girl was doomed to go back to the kitchen instead of being in evidence, but instead of this the better class of these girls—girls who look good and can really sing, are in demand more than ever before and in fact a lot of them are demanding more money than some of the principals. There is a reason for this, because they have become to any musical attraction, several years ago eighteen dollars a week was the limit for chorus girls' salaries, but today it is different; good ones are worth more and are getting it, even with increase in salaries they are more in demand than ever. An illustration of this may be had in the chorus of Walter O. Lindsay's production, "The Girl Over There." With this attraction there are eighteen picked girls whose salaries range from $25 to $40 a week. Mr. Lindsay, who is looking for results and with this class of chorus girls he is able to deliver something worth the public's while. This new Western breeze with music will appear at the Myers theatre on next Thursday, Feb. 6, for a return engagement.

FORTY YEARS AGO

More hopeful.—It is quite generally known that the youngest child of the Rev. Mr. Hodges—a boy about eight or nine years of age—is very low with typhoid fever. Four years ago he was born, but he would not survive the day. But we learn today that his symptoms are more hopeful and that there may be a chance for his recovery. Two of Mr. Hodges' daughters are also down with the same disease; one of them is convalescent but the other has not yet reached the crisis of the malady.

Examination of Mr. Goodrich.—The examination of Mr. Goodrich, arrested on the charge of forging an order on Clark, Linscomb & Co. of Shoppe, has been in progress before Judge Hudson today. The case excites a great deal of attention, particularly among the friends and acquaintances of Mr. G. In the country, the small of Mr. Hudson was found too small to accommodate all who wished to hop resent at the examination, and an adjournment was accordingly taken to the Court Room. He was held to bail in the sum of $1500.

The Ways and Means Committee have not yet reached the free list on revenue bills and great diversity of opinion exists in the committee respecting the number of articles which it should embrace. The committee have noticed a diminution in the internal revenue receipts during the last two months and apprehend that they may not be able to recommend the relief of many interests which they feel should be assisted.

CHARLES D. CARTER, the Chickasaw council for the term of 1895, was appointed mining trustee of the Indian Territory by President McKinley in 1890, was secretary of the first democratic executive committee of the proposed state of Oklahoma, and was elected to the 60th congress of the United States, defeating L. G. Disney, republican, and Mr. Cumble, socialist.

Report was circulated in Washington last week to the effect that Representative Charles D. Carter of Oklahoma might lose his seat in congress on account of not having been naturalized a sufficient length of time. Mr. Carter has had a remarkable career. He is an Indian by birth and a citizen by adoption. He was born in a little log cabin in the Chickasaw nation, August 16, 1863. Beginning in October, 1880, he attended a school at a log house near Mill Creek for two terms and entered the Chickasaw Manual Labor academy at Tahlequah where he was graduated June 18, 1895. Cleveland, O., Feb. 3.—The four-story brick building containing the mechanical department of the Plain Dealer Publishing company was practically destroyed by fire Sunday. The adjoining structure, in which the business and editorial offices are located, was not seriously damaged. The building destroyed contained the composing room with 22 typesets, job printing plant, store rooms, boilers and dynamos and press rooms in the basement. It is thought that two of the three big presses are not badly damaged. The loss on building and contents is estimated at $200,000, partially covered by insurance. The Plain Dealer will be issued from the Cleveland News-office for the present.

Late Sunday evening the Pennsylvania Railroad company's freight depot caught fire and was partly destroyed. It is in the midst of other warehouses and storage buildings and the blaze was a dangerous one.

Big Fire in Rome, N. Y.
Rome, N. Y., Feb. 3.—In the teeth of the wildest blizzard that has swept Onondaga county this winter firemen of three cities fought for five hours Sunday a fire that, before controlled, had caused a total loss of a quarter of a million dollars in the business section. Three buildings occupied by commercial houses were destroyed and a fourth damaged, as was also the Arlington hotel.

For a time it was feared that the conflagration could not be averted and two local departments, unable to stay the flames that were borne along by a stiff gale, appealed to Utica and Syracuse, each of which cities sent a steamer and company of men. There was a heavy fall of snow at the time and the mercury was but a few degrees above zero. The firemen suffered intensely and many sustained severe frostbites. The burned buildings were situated on Dominick street.

Fatal Fire in Kansas City.
Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 3.—Five persons were injured, one fatally, in a fire which destroyed Laddie Court, a three-story apartment house on the West side of this city, Sunday night.

The entire train of seven cars, including two day coaches, parlor car, dining car, sleeper, baggage and express coaches, was tipped over in the ditch. This is the statement made by the world on the authority of a staff correspondent, who has made a thorough investigation of the matter.

FOUND DEAD IN HOTEL.

Milwaukee Milliner Killed in New York by Narcotics.

New York, Feb. 3.—A handsome woman of perhaps 37 years, supposed to be Almyra Wilcox, who conducted a millinery establishment in Milwaukee, was found dead Sunday in her room at the Hotel Chelsea, where she registered last Monday. Death had occurred during the night and powder discovered in the room led the coroner to believe that an over portion of some narcotic had proved fatal. This view was concurred in by a physician who had treated the woman for insomnia. Letters written by her told of four sleepless nights.

INDIANA SELECTS ITS CONVENTION DELEGATES TUESDAY.

Great Throng of Hoosier Boomers Preparing to Attend the Gathering in Chicago.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 3.—Indiana Republicans will meet Tuesday in 13 district conventions to select 28 delegates to the national Republican convention. Four delegates-at-large will be chosen by the state convention April 1 and 2.

Every one of the 30 delegates will go to Chicago heartily loyal to Vice President Charles Warren Fairbanks and will work unflinchingly for his nomination for president. Mr. Fairbanks has the support of practically every Republican newspaper in the state and has been endorsed by the state committee, the Republican Editorial association of Indiana and by every district in the state.

The state committee has completed its organization for the campaign in Indiana and the party organization has been completed in every district, county, township and ward. The party in Indiana has no serious factional differences this year, the contests for places on the state ticket being spirited but friendly.

The delegation to the Chicago convention will be assisted in its efforts to nominate Mr. Fairbanks by thousands of Indiana Republicans, many of whom have secured their accommodations. With the state furnishing the chairman of the national committee and the vice president of the United States who is a prominent candidate for the presidential nomination, and the convention held on the state border, it is expected the Indiana crowd will far exceed any convention crowd the state has ever sent to represent it at a national gathering of the party.

The annual convention of the Lincoln league of the state, which meets at Wabash next week, will adopt resolutions supporting the candidacy of Mr. Fairbanks.

LEGISLATIVE VIGILANCE NEEDED

"If anything is calculated to check the investment of capital and prolong still further the depression through which the country has been going for several months, it is the presence of ultra-radical measures now pending in state legislatures," says today's Wall Street Journal. "Many of these measures, of course, have no chance whatever of being enacted into law. But the very fact that they are on the calendar and may be pushed through the legislature will, without sufficient criticism to expose their dangerous character, make it impossible to restore the confidence of the public in the safety of investment in these commonwealths at least."

"The conservative judgment of the country owes a duty at this point which it should not be slow in discharging. There is no reason why the rabid sentiment entertained in certain minds and thus expressed should be allowed to have the front of the stage, giving the impression to the public that their views have reasonable chances of being placed upon the statute books. For want of this insertion of conservative opinion, the sessions of some state legislatures are looked upon as warnings to people contemplating new enterprises."

"It thus comes to pass that the makers of laws when in session produce an air of business activity. Men fear that in some unjust ways the business interests of the state will be threatened with regulations that may wholly later the question of profitable employment of capital and labor. Not only does the investing public owe it to itself to speak out on these matters, but the whole commercial and industrial thought of the different states should be in some way focused upon the state capitals at such times, to expose the foolhardy measures that can never do any good, but are sure to do a vast amount of harm. A legislative vigilance committee would be a bad idea."

CURRENCY AND THE CROPS

The connection between currency and the crops is so vital in existing plans of currency reform as to justify equally careful consideration of both ends of the problem. Usually, however, the brunt of discussion falls upon currency. The crops are mentioned, but rarely in an intelligent grasp of actual conditions shown as they affect the demand and supply of currency.

There are usually three stages of progress in the demand which each particularly crop of importance makes upon the credit and the monetary resources of the country. First of all there is the preparation for planting and seedling which involves the purchase of draught animals, farm implements, fertilizers and the employment of labor. This usually extends until the crop is in the ground, covering possibly a month or two, according to the season is a favorable or an unfavorable one for field work. This first stage of outlay seldom requires more funds than the local banks or the nearby centers are capable of furnishing for the purpose. Large financial centers, therefore, feel the demand for money only indirectly, if at all, during this stage of the season.

The second stage involves the cultivation and growth, ending finally with harvesting. As harvesting season approaches, much heavier shipments of funds are necessary, not only for additional labor in harvesting and threshing, but also for the advances pending the selling of the season's yield. Usually the first strain upon the large financial centers is manifested by the time the wheat harvests of mid-summer are under way in the middle portions of the United States. Money thus utilized remains on duty in the capacity of a crop-holding service until the time for release from first hands becomes general toward the beginning of the winter.

The third stage of service which currency renders in connection with the crops is the commercial stage. When grain begins to seek the primary markets the daily demands reach enormous proportions. The primary grain markets of the west, supplemented by the large monetary centers of the east, have never yet been able to avoid the burden of crop moving, in spite of the claim that the west or the south was gradually increasing in capacity to move their crops with their own money.

The fact is that these rapidly developing agricultural sections have found many other uses for their increasing volume of funds, so that when the autumn demand for crop moving purposes returns, it is necessary to resort to markets where surplus money can be borrowed at the lowest rate to render a short-term service. No amount of change in the industrial constitution of essentially rural districts is likely to suspend this connection between crops and currency, which has been a feature of the country's financing through practically all of its history as a nation.

In another column will be found an article on good roads, how to build them and how to keep them, from Government experts. The man that wrote this article was here when the Clinton road was built last summer and knows the conditions that exist here, so they are especially valuable. They will appear from time to time in the Gazette.

Sensationalism is one of the evils of the modern day journals which leads the readers to inflated ideas relative to the existing condition of affairs. The truth is sometimes 'bad enough, but when dished up with spice and lies it is often repulsive except to the morbid who enjoy such items.

They say that Sherbelle Becker actually means to enter the field as a candidate for Governor. His subject will be good roads and it will be learned with reason that he will talk to the farmers with such a skill that they will be convinced he is really their friend.

Taft has announced that he will not invade states where a favorite son abides, seeking delegates to the National republican convention. This is taken to read that Wisconsin will be immune from a petty hickering and quarrel for delegates to this convention of conventions.

Thos. S. Nolan's announcement of his candidacy for congress has met with general approval throughout the district. Mr. Nolan fought a losing fight two years ago in a manner that made him many friends.

There is much that can be said in commendation of President Roosevelt's speech and from the utterances of Secretary Taft he intends to follow Mr. Roosevelt's policies if he is elected president.

Harry Thaw is in an asylum for the criminal insane. Harry is now in a place where he should have been placed years ago if the testimony of the doctors, his loving mother and his wife can be believed.

Janesville has become the focus of public opinion for the present and bids fair to surpass New York and its Thaw trial.

Roosevelt's speech to congress does not please Wall Street to hear the howl that has gone up from the Wall Street Journal.

Philander Knox of Pennsylvania is doing nothing but saw wood, but his woodpile thus far is contained in the seventy-two votes that Pennsylvania has.

Beloit talks of an artificial ley factory. Good for Beloit. They need something to keep the men busy who have been thrown out of work.

Milwaukee is still working for its Zoo. Janesville had a chance for a nucleus for a Zoo last summer, but neglected to take it.

It is learned that the contractors for the Pennsylvania capitol could have charged more if they had wanted to, but they didn't.

This weather makes tea and soon the harvest will begin for next summer's frozen fluid for cool drinks.

The groundhog saw his shadow yesterday and the contract smiles a smile that will not come off.

Uncle Joe is still the candidate for Illinois to be.

Knew by Experience.
It was during an oral examination at a medical college. As the examination proceeded the student who was being questioned got warmer and warmer, and the sweat broke out over his forehead. "What would you do to throw a patient into a profuse perspiration," at length asked the examiner, "if you had tried the ordinary drugs without effect?" "Send him here to be examined," replied the student without a moment's hesitation. "If that didn't do it there's nothing that would."

Best of All Gifts.

The best gift is love or friendship fitly expressed. The gift which expresses neither is no gift. Of all gifts he is the happiest who bestows gifts which bring comfort and pleasure where it is needed and which can furnish him no other reward than the knowledge that his gifts are well bestowed.

When you know a thing, to hold that you know it; and when you do not know a thing, to know that you do not know it; this is knowledge.—Confucius.

DURING THIS WEEK

We Will Continue Our SOUTH STORE DISPLAY

Here are spread out for easy inspection hundreds of pieces of the very newest styles of spring and summer

White and Colored Muslins, Batiste, Organdies, etc.

Considering the time of the year we have had a very satisfactory sale of these dainty wash materials. The display is being made primarily to emphasize the great assortment of beautiful novelties that we are showing and to rivet the attention of the women to this most important collection of wash goods that we have ever shown. While many women just come in to look they wind up with buying, realizing that the choicest styles cannot last always and that it is an excellent time to secure just the desired styles.

The colored novelties while very beautiful are yet not expensive. White and tinted grounds with colored designs such as checks, figures, dots, scrolls, rings, stripes, flowers; some plain, some in invisible block creations, solid colors, very new, others with embroidered dots and figures, etc. Prevailing prices 15c, 18c, 20c and 25c

Rare Novelties in White Muslins Made in Switzerland

We have never had before such an assortment of WHITE MUSLINS. No wonder women go into raptures over these rarely beautiful imported novelties. There are eyelet effects, dainty checks and bars combined with tiny embroidered dots and figures, elaborate embroidered floral designs, an array of entirely new styles that surpass anything we have yet shown. Prices range 50c to $1.00

JANESVILLE BANKERS ARE NOT SATISFIED

General Opinion Is That the Aldrich Bill Will Not Meet the Requirements.

Janesville bankers as a whole are not generally impressed with the Aldrich bill and the results it is hoped it would accomplish.

John G. Rofford, President of the First National Bank, said: "I think the bill in the long run is a step forward. I hope conditions will never be the same as they have been recently, but if they are the Aldrich bill, if passed, might help settle matters in some degree. It would do no harm and may do some good."

W. O. Newhouse, cashier in the same bank, said: "I have not had time to carefully study the measure, but as panics are caused by lack of confidence and are always by lack of currency I would be in favor of some law providing for a more elastic currency, which would allow banks to continue payment of money."

C. S. Jackson, President of the Rock County National Bank, said: "The Aldrich bill is very unsatisfactory to practically all bankers. I do not think it will do at all."

A. P. Burnham, in the same bank, said: "I do not think the Aldrich bill will accomplish what it is supposed to do. The plan of allowing banks to have bonds and issue bank notes with them as security, is not feasible, as the bonds are too high priced that would be safe to use as such security. Personally I am not in favor of the bill."

George G. Sutherland, President of the Bower City Bank, said: "I have not studied the Aldrich bill sufficiently since it was amended to give a definite opinion as to whether or not it will do what it is expected to do. I myself am in favor of a central bank modeled after the Bank of England."

A. E. Bingham, cashier of the same bank, said: "While the amendments proposed by the committee of the National Bankers' Association, I think the Aldrich bill would be a step in the right direction. I would not be in favor of the bill as originally proposed. The best thing would be an emergency currency which could be put into use without the majority of the people knowing that such a step was necessary. The amendments proposed by the National Bankers' Association are as far as possible to accomplish this."

W. S. Jorris, President of the Merchants & Mechanics' Bank, said: "I have not had time to study the Aldrich bill, but would say that I think we need a more elastic currency to obviate such a state of affairs as we have just gone through, than is provided by this measure."

M. G. Jeffries, Banker and lawyer, said: "I have not read the Aldrich bill since it was amended. The amendments I understand change it considerably, but the interest rate in the original bill was too high. Personally I am in favor of a central bank of commission."

Work of Kilpatrick, Yale's Strong Man, Attracting Attention.

HAGGIN ABANDONS TROTTERS.

Noted Breeder to Devote His Time Hereafter to Running—Other Interesting Notes on Skating, Hockey, Basketball and Bowling.

Following in the footsteps of his father, who was champion all around athlete of America a number of years ago, John Reed Kilpatrick, who recently won the Yale freestyle strength test, bids fair to fill his "pop's" shoes before many years as a champion. "Kil," as the young strong man is

JOHN R. KILPATRICK.

Yale is called, is nineteen years of age, five feet eleven inches tall and weighs 175 pounds and hails from New York City.

His name attracted the attention of all the colleges. At the Princeton intercollegiate meet he won the high and low hurdles, third in the running broad jump, second in the shot put. At the Andover intercollegiate meet he scored 23 points. At the Yale intercollegiate meet he won first places in the high and low hurdles and running broad jump and third in the shot put. Of Andover's 70.25 points scored at the Harvard intercollegiate meet he captured the high and low hurdles, running broad jump, throwing twelve pound hammer and the fourth in the shot put, making a total of 21 points. The total number of points scored in the strength test at Yale by him was 1,816.0, which compares favorably with that made by Ted Coy in 1904.

It has been announced by Chairman John J. Dixon of the national registration committee and secretary of the A. A. U. that the latter body will no longer have any control over ice or roller skating. Thereafter those sports will be under the supervision of the International Skating union, and all skaters must be registered with that body, except in the case of basketball on roller skates, which will still be in charge of the A. A. U.

J. B. Haggin has decided to abandon the breeding of trotters and has consigned the stallion Knight, with all mares and yearlings, to a Kentucky sales company's auction, Feb. 10 to 15. After that date only running horses will be bred at Elmendorf farm.

Almost a record basketball score was rolled up at Ithaca, N. J., recently when the West Side Hall five of that city defeated the South Orange High school by a tally of 104 to 8. The game was much too one sided to be interesting.

At the annual meeting recently of the stockholders of the Detroit American league baseball club Frank J. Nayor, for three years secretary of the club, was elected president, to succeed William H. Yawkey. Yawkey in retiring from the presidency of the club still retains his financial interest in the property.

Detroit is after the national bowling tournament next year. The alley sharks of that city have mapped out a line of action and will go to Cincinnati loaded with reasons why they should be given the opportunity of entertaining the bowlers of the world. They are preparing to raise $10,000 with which to entertain the big crowd which always attends the national meet.

The interest in hockey has increased to such a degree within the past few years in Philadelphia that there has been organized the Interclub Hockey league, composed of teams from the Germantown Cricket, Belmont, Merion, Lansdowne, Moorstown, Frankford, Haddonfield and the Philadelphia cricket clubs.

THE ROUNDUP COLUMN.

West Delivers a Few Uppercuts That Strike Home.

This is the time of year when ball players resort to all sorts of bluffs to secure an increase in salary. Some of them declare they have outside business interests which they cannot leave, while others say they have suddenly come into great wealth by the death of a rich relative. A few announce that they have purchased an interest in a minor league club and will become managers, and it is often the case that a player states that he is going to enter a profession as a result of hard study. But when the spring rolls around and the jingle of the gold in the managers' pockets is heard throughout the land these same players lose no time in climbing into the band wagon, for all of them are fond of easy money.

A player who regards baseball as hard work cannot be taken too seriously. Some of them would sooner play than eat.

THE TENPIN FIEND.
I've enjoyed most consistently
To roll a score that is a score,
The boys at that encourage me,
But they don't do it any more.
When I'd lament a damaged thumb
And limp around with a swollen sore,
They'd say: "Cheer up! The day will come
When you will roll a perfect score!"
I bought a ligament vine that
For beauty couldn't be surpassed.
I was a bowling diplomat,
And with the best I soon was classed.
On some occasions I would bowl
Much better than the night before,
But, though in form, to save my soul
I couldn't roll a perfect score.

TIMELY ADVICE TO BOWLERS

OH! TWO ELEVEN
AINT SO BAD EM?
Don't get all excited up over big score.

BAH! I'M GOING TO QUIT THIS GAME
Because you may get ill next time.

AW! IT WAS AWAY OFF THE SPOT
If you don't make a strike every time, rear about the poor set up.
It goes fine.

CE. YOW!
GOT ONE PIN
DOWN ANYWAY!
Slide about five feet over the last line. It's fine for the alley and it pleases the owner.

When to the alley I would fare
And drinks were ordered, I would pike.
I looked with scorn upon a "spare."
And swore each ball would make a game.

A preferred character I'd pass.
All conversation I'd deplore.
I was ambitious; but, alas,
I couldn't roll a perfect score.

In every game I started fine
And had a hunch that I would win.
I'd run a string of strikes to nine
And then fall on a lonely pin.
Perhaps I may improve with age,
But it will be some time before
My picture's on the sporting page.
As one who rolled a perfect score.

English sport critics now refer to Gunner Molt as the Scotchman. Before he fought Tommy Burns he was the big Irishman.

Charley Murphy, owner of the Chicago National league club, announces that he is ever willing to help out his less fortunate rivals with advice.

Jim Jeffries' father says Jim won't fight, his mother says so. Jim says likewise, Mrs. J. J. says ditto. That ought to be enough.

Looks like another cruel slap at the
A. A. U. when a gent like H. H. Haggins, the A. U. wrestling person, throws his standing to the winds and struggles with other strenuous athletes for a piece of change.

Also Attoll's father used to threaten him with arrest for entering the club, but when Abe began to bring home the bucan he threatened to have him arrested if he did not box.

Battling Nelson forgets he is no longer champion and should chop that 60 per cent win, loss or draw tag that he is pulling.

BOWLING IS POPULAR

Great Interest in the Game Throughout the Country.

POINTS BY AN EXPERT.

Some Difficult Breaks and How to Make Them—The 7-10 "Split" Seldom Made—Solving Other Shots That Look Difficult.

Bowling has proved more popular than ever so far during the season of 1907-8, and the interest taken in it throughout the country this year is most pleasing to those who consider it one of the best indoor games. Like billiards, the possibilities of bowling are unlimited, and one never knows what peculiar formations a game will bring out. Hits which go into the MOST DIFFICULT SHOT ON TENPIN ALLEY.

"Crutch"—that is, midway between the one and two pins or the one and three—will sweep off certain other pins and leave standing formations which make the bowler wonder how they possibly could occur. They do happen, though, and picking up the difficult ones is what marks the finished bowler from the man who picks loose a good score by accident. Strikes are not so hard to get and often are accidents, but the man who can go through a series of games getting spares with regularity is a more finished bowler than the man who shoves them all down with the first ball and misses one or two pins.

The "break" or "split" is the bone of the man who would pile up big scores. Just why and how they happen is a mystery, but they do occur, and it is one of the fates of the game that they usually come in the middle of a long string of strikes and just where they will do the most harm. The break is a most discouraging calamity, as it throws the bowler off his stride and causes many a good man to lose his nerve.

Explanations of the breaks and how to make them are as follows:

First—5-7-9 split—Ball strikes 5 pin lightly on right side; 5 pin strikes 6 and gets 7; ball carries 9 pin.

Second—7-10 split—Should be rolled with smallest ball handy. Hit 7 pin three-quarters on left hand side; 7 must rebound from back cushion to get 10. Most difficult shot on tenpin alley.

Third—4-7-10 split—Ball strikes 4 pin very lightly on left hand side; 4 carries and gets 9 and 10 pins; ball carries 7 pin.

Fourth—3-5-9 split—Pins close together, but very difficult. Ball hit 3 pin just full enough so that 3 pin will hit 5 pin on the inside to catch 9; ball gets 10 pin.

Fifth—Strike split—1,000 to 1 shot, but possible. Ball barely touches 8 pin on right side, sliding it across to 10.

Sixth—2-4-5-8-10 split—Ball hits 2 pin full and hits 5 pin this on left side; 5 pin carries and gets 10 pin; ball takes 4 and 8 pins.

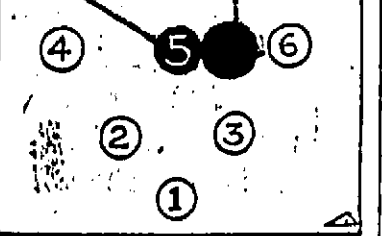

Seventh—3-6-8-10 split—Ball hits 3 pin one-third full on left hand side; 3 pin carries and gets 6 and 10; ball gets 8 pin.

Eighth—2-4-7-8-10 split—Ball hits 2 pin on extreme left hand side; 2 carries and gets 6, 9 and 10 pins; ball carries 4 and 7 pins.

Ninth—4-6-8-10 split—Use smallest ball handy; hit 6 pin three-quarters full; get a rebound of 6 pin from cushion on 8, which will carry 4. Ball carries 10 pin.

Tenth—2-5-10 split—Ball hits 2 one-fourth full on right side; 2 carries and gets 5 and 10 pins.

The "railroad split," 4-7-10, occurs often when a straight ball down the center of the alley strikes No. 1 pin full on. That has been made occasionally, probably once or twice during a season. The ball picks off the 4-7 side and the 4 pin is struck so thin that it slides across the alley and gets the 6-10. If struck too thin, the 6 pin only goes down; if not quite thin enough, the 10 slides off into the pit.

One of the most frequent "splits" is the 5-10. All are familiar with it and the way of picking it up. The ball is sent down the alley to strike the 5 pin thin on the right side. That takes care of 5 and sends the ball farther to the right so it will pick off No. 10. Some bowlers start the ball for this break at the left side of the alley and make it cross over, but few do it that way.

INTEREST IN HOCKEY.

Great Canadian Game Has Firm Hold on American Skaters.

Hockey has taken a great hold on the athletically inclined who love outdoor sports. Last winter more players and clubs were represented on the ice than there have been in any other year since its introduction in America. Hockey is one of the most fascinating, exciting and scientific games ever played. It is a game for the youth. It is a rugged game for strong, full blooded men. Workings cannot survive in it. The puny cannot play it, and the flound have no place in it. It is perhaps the greatest game that can be played unaided. Hockey possesses all the spice of polo without the necessity for calling upon the animal kingdom.

The growth of hockey has been quick. It is a game of the present generation and may be truly called a twentieth century pastime. Of much-room growth, its development has been truly wonderful, and because it is well suited to the people who inhabit the northern part of this continent and one well calculated to grow in popularity year by year.

Hockey is a game that requires skill and courage, speed and strength, and the man who has all of these qualifications and a cool head is the man who makes a great player. To be a good hockey player a man must necessarily be an accomplished skater—even better, a master of his skates. Then he must be skilled in the use of his stick, adroit in avoiding collision, quick in judgment and possessed of an iron nerve that will not fail when in the face of impending danger.

The old fashioned shinney was undoubtedly the forerunner of our scientific hockey, though some authorities claim that it was handed down to us from the Romans. The present game as played in England, however, has little reference to hockey as played in the United States.

As time wore on and the public gradually began to see the possibilities of the sport, there came a gradual development of this scientific pastime, and these important changes and regulations gave birth to the scientific characteristics that have made hockey a fascinating game.

Scarcely a half dozen years ago the game was almost unknown in the United States and was practically a Canadian sport. Now in its development it belongs to America, and it will be but a short time before the younger generation of boys in the northern states to meet the Canadians on equal grounds. At this time the Canadians are in the lead when it comes to playing the game. In fact, the winning teams of the United States have many ex-Canadians taking a prominent part in the personnel of the teams. But because the younger generation of the schools and colleges are taking a keen interest in the game this state of affairs will not continue for long, and soon, indeed it will be that the growing American boy will be able to go after his Canadian rival with equal skill.

James Shirreff, one of the crack hockey players of the Crescent Athletic club of New York, is now attracting attention by his clever play. Shirreff has a knack of carrying the puck down the ice now and then, with the little rubber disk against the side of his stick, and making one grand rush or hurdle for the net in a football. He is usually successful.

Moakley on Cross Country Running.

Cross country running is growing in importance as a college sport, according to Treasurer Moakley of Cornell. Moakley says: "Most men lose their enthusiasm in a few days because of the accompanying lameness of the leg muscles, which were not used to such a prolonged strain. Had these men begun their running properly and not overdone it they would have become ardent enthusiasts and physically the better for it. There is a right and a wrong way to do everything, and this is true of running. If a man has the ability to run a mile, he can run ten miles. The difference in the pace serves sufficient energy for one to carry the distance. It is not necessary to run anything like the distance one's race would be more than once a week."

THAW BEGINS ON ASYLUM ROUTINE

IS SPEEDILY SETTLED IN THE MATTEAWAN INSTITUTION.

SLEEPS AND EATS WELL

Tells Attendant He Expects to Be Out in a Week—He Will Have Special Meals.

Matteawan, N. Y., Feb. 3.—Harry K. Thaw, who was acquitted Saturday of the murder of Stanford White on the ground of insanity, began Sunday the routine of a simple life which the authorities at the State Hospital for the Criminal Insane may will make his long stay in the Tombs prison in New York City seem like the height of gaiety in comparison.

The new patient in the observation ward slept soundly Saturday night, the presence of the 50 other men in the dormitory not giving him the slightest concern. It was after the usual retiring hour when Thaw reached the hospital and he immediately went to bed. He had enjoyed the trip from New York with his counsel, as well as the dinner at the hotel in Fishkill Landing, Sunday he ate a hearty breakfast at the "kitchen and fork table." Only 54 men out of the more than 700 in the institution are allowed this privilege, the others being restricted to spoons.

At 3 p. m. Thaw attended divine service in the hospital auditorium or theater, conducted by Rev. Harry Sheldon, pastor of the Fishkill Landing Methodist Episcopal church.

Expects to Be Out in a Week.

During the day Thaw declared to one of the attendants that he probably would not be in the hospital more than one week. He said his lawyers would sue out a writ of habeas corpus in his behalf and he was sure he would be allowed his liberty as the result of a hearing in court or an inquiry before a commission.

Thaw's picture and measurements for the hospital records will be taken during the early part of the week. He already has given his age to the authorities as 37 years. During his stay in the observation ward, prior to being assigned to some particular division or to private quarters, he will be under the immediate supervision of Dr. August T. Baker, one of the medical assistants to Superintendent Lamb. Dr. Baker said he would not allow Thaw to have liquor and tobacco unless his condition seemed to demand them for a time in medical moderation.

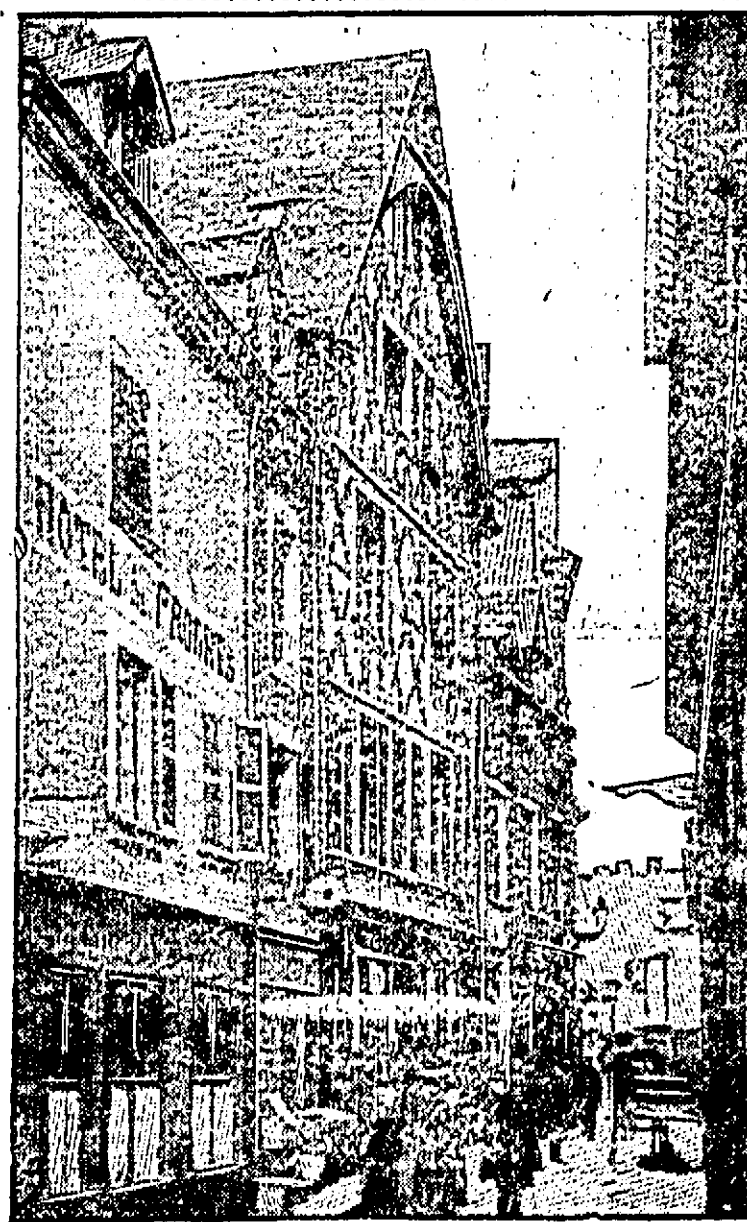

He Will Have Special Meals.

Thaw brought a large sum of money with him to the hospital, but finding he would not be allowed his custody handed it to a newspaper man, who turned it over to his counsel. During the week provision will be made by the family for special meals and table delicacies for Thaw, the money being placed in the hands of the authorities.

At five o'clock Sunday afternoon Dr. Britton D. Evans of Morris Plains, N. J., and Dr. Smith Ely Jelliffe of New York, alienists, arrived at the hospital. They were employed by the defense in both trials of Harry K. Thaw, and while both evaded questions regarding their presence here, it is said they came at the instigation of Mrs. William Thaw to examine her son and be prepared with evidence when habeas corpus proceedings are brought up to liberate him.

"We just had a Sunday off," said Dr. Evans, who declared at the first trial that Thaw had a "brainstorm," "so we came up to see Harry."

S. S. S. CURES A SAFE HOME TREATMENT

In S. S. S. nature has provided a certain, safe, home cure for Contagious Blood Poison. It is a medicine made entirely of roots and herbs of recognized blood-purifying value, and is the one medicine which is able to get down to the root of the trouble and remove every particle of the virus, and at the same time benefit and build up the system and general health. No harmful effects ever follow its use, as is so often the case when strong mineral medicines are used. As soon as the system gets under the influence of S. S. S. the disease begins to improve, and when the remedy has thoroughly purified the blood and driven out every trace of the poison, no signs of the trouble are ever seen again. The general manifestations of Contagious Blood Poison such as falling hair, copper-colored spots, ulcerated mouth and throat, sores and ulcers, etc., are merely symptoms of the poisoned condition of the blood, and in most cases respond quickly to local treatment, while S. S. S. is doing the necessary work of cleansing the blood. Our "Home Treatment" book is of great assistance along this line. It is a complete guide for treating the trouble, containing instructions for the different stages of the disease, and also valuable suggestions about the local treatment, that will be most helpful in effecting a cure. We will be glad to send a copy of this book, free of charge, to any who desire it, and if special medical advice is wanted our physicians will take pleasure in supplying it without cost to the patient. If you are suffering with Contagious Blood Poison you can cure yourself in the privacy of your own home by the use of S. S. S., an absolutely safe remedy.

"I'm so very glad to explain it some day," he said, but there was no mirth in his voice or eyes, only the sickening lip writhing the pallor.
"Will you not answer now?" she asked.
"No, not now. But I desire you to understand it some day—some day before November. And one or two other matters that it is necessary for you to understand. I want to explain them, Sylvia, in such a manner that you will never be likely to forget them. And I mean to. For they are never out of my mind, and I wish them to be as ineffably impressed on yours. Good night."
He took her limp hand almost briskly, released it and stepped down the stairs as Agatha entered, cloaked, to any good night.

They kissed at parting—"life embracing death"—as Mortimer had sneered on a similar occasion. Then Sylvia, alone, stood in her bedroom, hands linked behind her, her lovely head bent, groping with the very ghosts of thought which eluded her, feeling, vanishing, reappearing, to peep out at her only to fade into nothing ere she could follow where they flitted through the dark labyrinth of memory.

The major, craning his neck in the bay window, saw Agatha and Quarrier enter the big yellow motor and disappear behind the limousine. And it worried him horribly, because he knew perfectly well that Quarrier had lied to him about a jeweled collar precisely like the collar worn by Agatha Cathness, and what to do or say to anybody on the subject was for the first time in his life utterly beyond his glibulous ability.
Another matter. He had violated his word and had been caught at it by his prospective nephew-in-law—broken his pledged word not to sell his Amalgamated Electric holdings, and had done it. Yet how could Plank dominate unless another also had done what he had done? And it made him a little more comfortable to know he was sharing the fault with somebody—probably with Seward, whom he now had the luxury of despising for the very thing he himself had done.
"Drunkard!" he muttered to himself. "He's in the gutter at last!"
And he repeated it mutely, almost reconciled to his own shortcoming, because it was the first time, as far as he knew, that a Belwother might legitimately enjoy the pleasures of holding the word of a Seward in contempt.

Sylvia had dimmed her mind, the old feeling of distaste for the touch of the returned soldier since the last mad, crushed embrace in Seward's arms had become a memory. Now, blue eyes gleaming under the bright masses of her loosened hair, she sat watching the last glimmer amid the ashes whitening on the hearth, thinking of Seward and of what had been between them and of what could never be—never, never be!

One red spark among the ashes—her ambition, deathless amid the ashes of life! When that, too, went out life must be extinct.
What he had roused in her had died when he went away. It could never awake again unless he returned to awaken it. And he never would. He would never come again.
One brief interlude of love, of passion, in her life could neither stir nor faint the cool, normal sequence of her days. All that life held for a woman of her caste—all save that—was hers when she stretched out her hand for it—hers by right of succession, of descent; hers by warrant unquestioned, by the unuttered text of the ukase to be launched if necessary, by that very, very old lady, dowager, enthroned, as the endless pageant would like a jeweled river at her feet.
So Seward could never come again, snatching toward her through the sunlight, smiling his absent smile. She caught her breath painfully, straightening up. A single ash fell in the fire. The last spark went out.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

THE park was very misty and damp and still that February morning. Far away on the wooded hillside the dulled double gallop of horses sounded, now muffled in a hollow, now louder, faring the rising ground, nearer, heavier, then suddenly checked to a trample, as Sylvia drew beside by the reservoir and, straightening up, raised her head, raked her flushed face to the sky.
"Rain!" she asked as Quarrier, controlling his beautiful, rosy horse, ranged up alongside of her.
"Probably," he said, scarcely glancing at the sky, where above the great rectangular lagoons, hundreds of sea gulls, high in the air, hung flapping, stemming some rushing upper gale unfelt below.
On their daily rides together it was her custom to discuss practical matters concerning their future, and it was his custom to listen until pressed for a suggestion, an aspect of a topic.

Sparing words—cautions, chary of self-commitment and seldom offering to assume the initiative—this was the surface character which she had come to recognize and acquiesce in. This was Quarrier as he had been developed from her hazy, preconceived ideas of the man before she had finally accepted him at Shroveton the autumn before. She also knew him as a methodical man, exacting from others the orderly precision which characterized his own dealings. A man of education and little learning, of attainments and little cultivation, conversant with usages, formal, intensely sensitive to ridicule, incapable of humor.

This was Quarrier as she knew him or had known him. Recently she had, little by little, become aware of an indomitable change in the man. For one thing, he had grown more reticent. At times, too, his reserve seemed to have something almost eerie about it. Under his cold composure a hint of something concealed, watchful and very quiet.

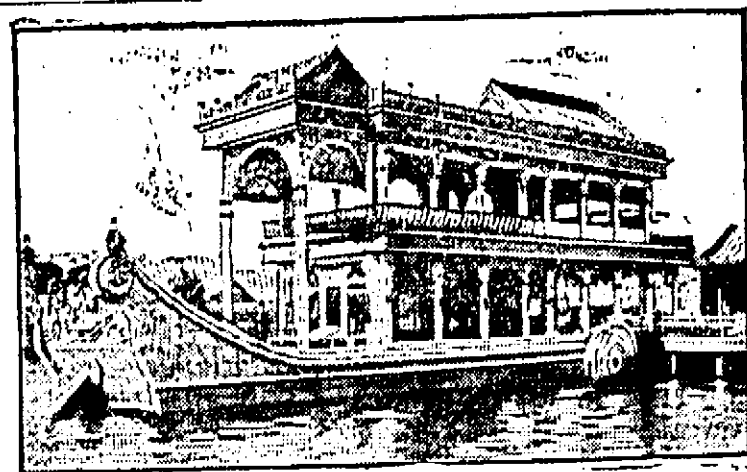

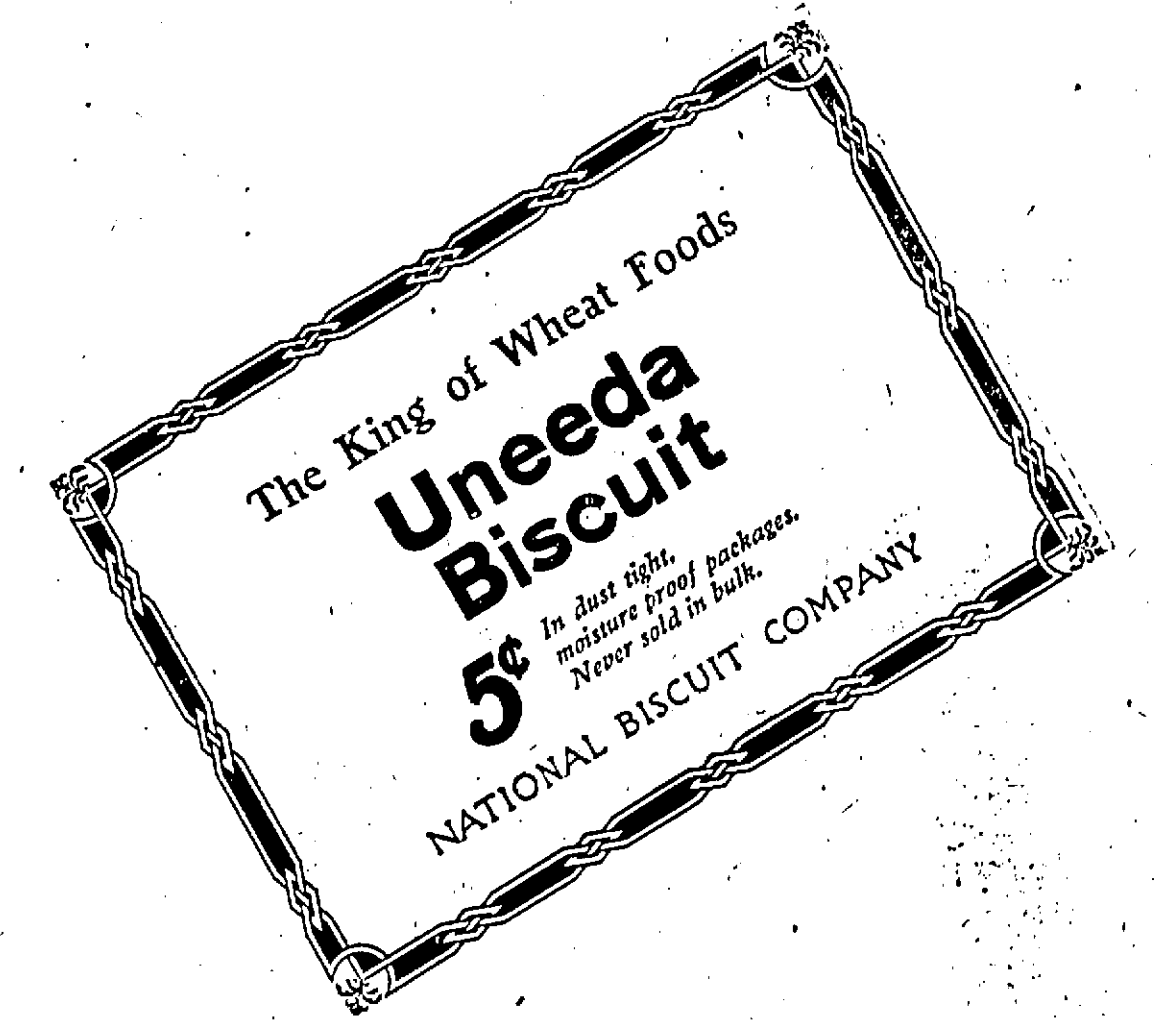

Confidences she had never looked for in him nor desired. It appalled her at moments to realize how little they had in common and that only on the surface—a communion of superficial interest incident to the fulfillment of social duties and the pursuit of pleasure. Beyond that she knew nothing of him, required nothing of him. What was there to know? What to require?
Now that the main line of her route through life had been surveyed and carefully laid out, what was there more for her in life than to set out upon her progress? It was her own road. Presumptive leader already, logical leader from the day she married—leader, in fact, when the ukase, her future legacy, so decreed. It was a royal road laid out for her through the gardens and pleasant places. A road for her alone, and over it she had chosen to pass. What more was there to desire?

From the going of Seward all that he had aroused in her of love, of intelligence, of wholesome desire and sane curiosity—the intellectual restlessness, the capacity for passion, the renascence of the simpler innocence—had subsided into the insensate fair of dull quiescence.

Hiding there, head bent, her pulses thumping the slow piling of her horse, she presently became aware, without looking up, that Quarrier was watching her. She moved slightly in her saddle to look at him and for an instant fancied that there was something furtive in his eyes. Only for an instant, for he quietly picked up the thread of conversation where she had dropped it, saying that it had been raining for the last ten minutes and that they might as well turn their horses toward shelter.

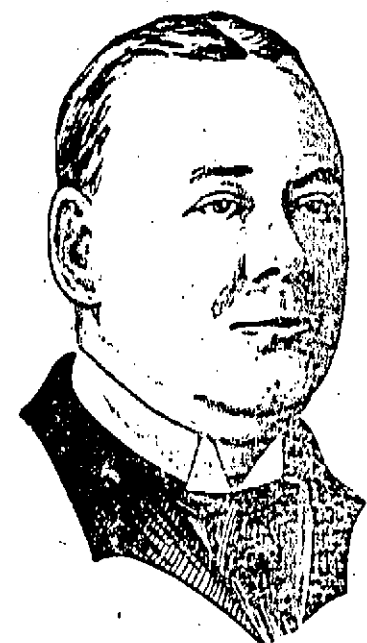

Without reason, through and through her shot a shiver of loneliness—utter loneliness and isolation. Without reason, because from him she expected nothing, required nothing, except what he offered—the emotionless reticence of indifference, the composure of perfect formality. What did she want, then—companions? She had them. Friends? She could scarcely escape from them. Intimates? She had only to choose one or a hundred attuned responsive to her every mood, every caprice. Lonely? With the men of New York crowding, shouldering, crushing their way to her feet? Lonely? With the women of New York struggling already for precedence in her favor—omen significant of the days to come, of those future years dimly linked in one unbroken, triumphant glitter.

A PLEASURE BOAT THAT DOES NOT SAIL.
The picture shows the famous marble ship of the Dowager of China. The ship is in reality a garden house in the center of a lake in the royal summer palace at Peking. The vessel is constructed of marble and resembles an elaborate pleasure Jun K. The boat is the personal property of the dowager-empress.

"Why—you, for example," she said, laughing.
"I don't expect to."
"Then it is going to turn out all right? And Mr. Plank and Kemp Ferrall and the major and the other people interested are not going to be all most ruined by the Intercounty people?"
"Do you think a man like Plank is likely to be ruined, as you say, by Amalgamated Electric?"
"No. But Kemp and the major?"
"I think the major is out of danger," replied Quarrier, looking at her with the new, sudden narrowing of his eyes.
"I am glad of that. Is Kemp—and the others?"
"Ferrall could stand it if matters go wrong. What others?"
"Why—the other owners and stockholders?"
"What others? Who do you mean?"
"Mr. Seward, for example," she said in an even voice, leaning over to pat her horse's neck with her gloved hand.
"Mr. Seward must take the chances we all take," observed Quarrier.
"But, Howard, it would really mean ruin for him if matters went badly. Wouldn't it?"

I do the very best I know how—the very best I can; and I mean to keep doing so until the end. If the end brings me out all right, what is said against me won't amount to anything. If the end brings me out wrong, ten angels swearing I was right would make no difference.—Abraham Lincoln.

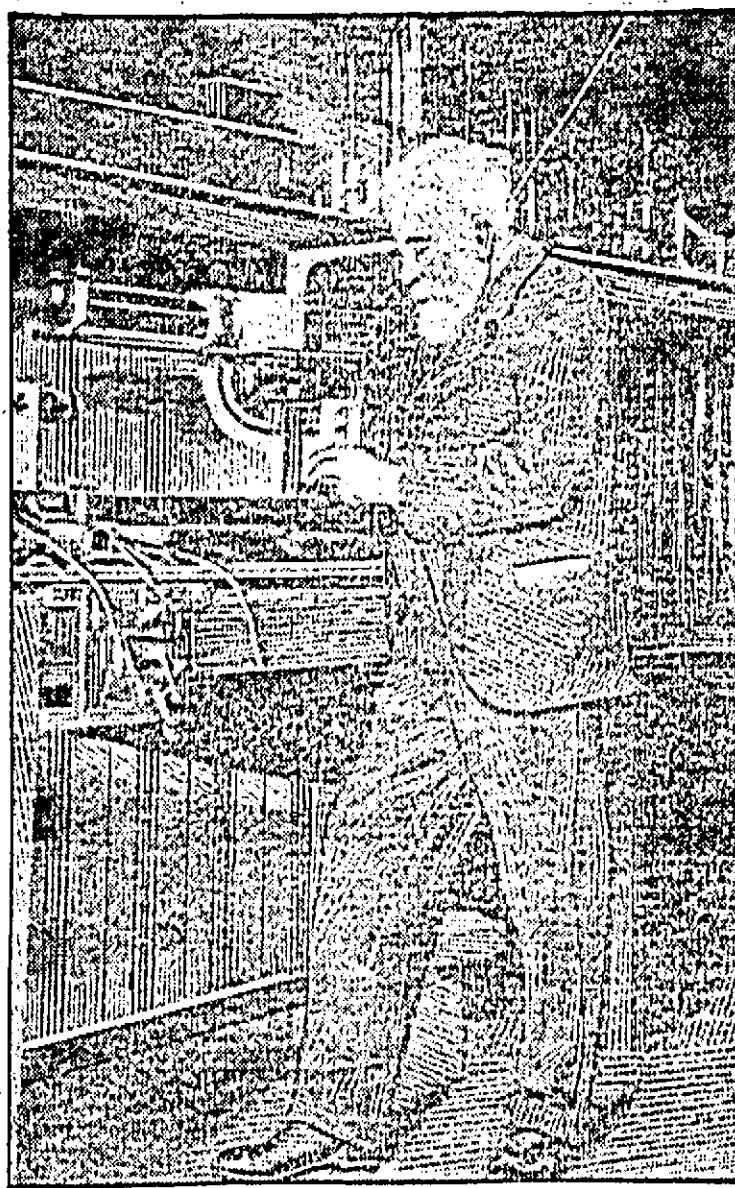

Nearer.
In our mining camp the men congregate on a bench outside the mess-house and "talk it over." One of the miners, old Methuselah, has a very prominent nose, and is the object of much respectful amusement. Last night one of the men remarked that there was a fly on the end of his nose. Old Methuselah answered: "Brush it off yourself; you are nearer to it than I!"—Harpers.

A very charming accessory to the winter wardrobe is this worsted negligee in a fast shell pink. The deep ruche knit in beige stitch while the circular sleeve ruffles and the flounce, which makes the garment of waist, side and top portion of the sleeves length, is in openwork scallop design. Three rows of chain stitching where the flounce joins the main stitch is worked in for the purpose of threading satin ribbons through, these tieing in bows at the bustline, neck and elbows.

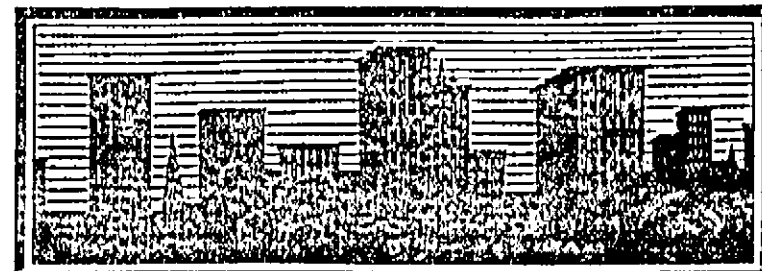

A Fable of the Future.

Now, be it known that the Slingiest Man in Stringtown was wise in his Day and Generation, for along back in 1907 A. D. or thereabout it became the Settled Habit of the Stringtown people to purchase Large Sheets of Little Stickers bearing portraits of C. Washington, B. Franklin, W. McKinley and other Late Illustrious Ones, which Specimens of Art they straightway stuck on envelopes and sent to a Large and Luring Mail Order Concern in Millionville. Wherefore it came about that the Seven Stores in Stringtown 'Shut up Shop, one after the other, until along in 1919 A. D. the Stingiest Man found it incumbent upon him to begin purchasing these Small Specimens of Art to present to the Maw of the Monster in Millionville, and the Aforesaid was Simply too Stingy to stand for the Same.

REAL ESTATE CONDITIONS OVER THE COUNTRY.

Building operations in the principal cities for 1907 show a decrease of 10 per cent in comparison with the preceding year. Permits were taken out in 41 cities in 1907, according to official reports to Construction Bureau, for 155,751 buildings, involving a total cost of $3,675,752, aggregating 1,272,862 buildings aggregating in cost $64,485,119 in 1906, a gain of 7856 in the number of buildings, and a decrease in cost of $30,070,449, or 10 per cent. This would indicate that construction was upon a much more active basis than in 1906, the large increase in the number of buildings showing a broader and more general interest upon the part of a larger number of people and upon the whole, a more active and energetic movement engaged in the building industry.
